

A Woman's Domain

Handbags are pretty handy and are available in many brand names. Although nowadays they are unisex - yes, there are handbags for men too - hand held bags are chiefly the domain of women particularly those who cherish to show off additional accessories. In a fashion conscious world, it would be foolhardy to frown upon the rank, class, grace and finesse that a well crafted and beautifully patterned leather hand bag can bestow on even the plainest of damsels. A social occasion, an official function, a home, or the office is never complete without the presence of hand bags. That great playwright, William Shakespeare, once wondered what was in a name. He questioned whether a rose would cease to be a rose if it was by some other name called. Of course in the world of flowers, a rose will remain a rose whether it is called a bush - but not in the world of human beings! A woman can never be called a lady if she doesn't have a hand bag flung on her arms all the times.

Not to be left behind, handbags also are available in durable but hair weight designs which are resistant to scratches of any kind. They come in multiple shades, patterns, textures and shiny exteriors. However much you might think they are the same, the closer you look the more you will realise that each piece of hand bag has an exclusive look to it. In this respect, modern designers hardly ever give women breathing space because the quality of skills they use keep on producing stunning innovative designs that provide a changing panorama of hand bags for women.

The vast array of leather handbags display characteristics which range from classical softness, original designs associated with specific regions, long adjustable straps and highly refined, clean finished lines that not only imparts airs of attractiveness but also guarantees cool comfort when carried. Does one have to do anything else to capture that special feminine and fragile look other than simply having a stylish handbag?

Now, since handbags are a prominent aspect of our everyday life, they are compartmentalised to contain all the odds and ends that we daily need to run our lives efficiently. For instance, Italian hand bags have several exterior and interior zippered pockets for things like wallets, cell phones, mini make-up kit, business card holders etc. Other unique characteristics are: front pockets with zips, double adjustable wooden or leather rolled handles, and cotton or nylon lining for cool interiors.
